Introduction

After years of conversations with broadcasters, streamers, production companies, unions, guilds, agents and freelance crew it's clear we're all striving for transformation in the HETV industry with regards to doing more than creating art, earning a wage and taking a credit. Many organisations already have many of their own policies/guidelines, training schemes and initiatives that are implemented within their company and on their productions in order to be active around inclusion, support and development.

The intention of this document is to create a resource that complements what is already in place, introducing new resources and connections and providing an indicative guide to potential cost implications at the different band levels. The Production Support Initiative aims to demonstrate that no matter what HETV band a production is, there are opportunities to create examples of positive action and provide production support through a pick 'n' mix approach.

This document is about inclusion and development. We're not policy makers, but whatever capacity you are reading this document in, we all have an opportunity to be an example, to be supported and to grow throughout the process of creating HETV drama. Most of the time when a production is commissioned, a new limited company (SPV) is set up to service this. Setting up the company is by nature a business and accounts process, but another way to look at it is that at the point it is created there is nothing in that company and everything that goes into it after that point is a choice and forms the infrastructure... including the culture and support.

The ambition and scale of this resource has grown and evolved exponentially since it was started and by the time you are reading this, it will already be out of date. However, this only demonstrates further the speed at which the guidelines, training and initiatives available to support HETV productions are evolving. Mindful of this, I want to apologise in advance for the policies, companies or information that is not included yet, or is out of date. This is one of the priorities of Version 2 when it is published in April 2025.

While this version of the Production Support Initiative is specifically for HETV drama, my ambition is for versions of this resource to be created for unscripted, feature films and children's, and for all of those to then have sections for the different nations and regions.

While this first version runs at an unapologetic 80+ pages, the majority of pages are tables of easily digestible ideas, actions, costs and contacts. This is not a document you need to know inside out, it's here to make it easy for you to take positive actions. Its value is in its usage and its ability to stay relevant and for that, it will always be looking to evolve and grow through your feedback and contributions.

Acknowledgements

Thank you to all the broadcasters, streamers, heads of production, Pact, Bectu, ScreenSkills, the Film and TV Charity, The Production Guild, positive action advocates, service providers, line producers, production managers and the team at 60Forty Films for your time, huge contributions and active encouragement. I'm delighted to say this resource has been created by the industry for the industry.

While much of the information in this resource can be applied to other formats such as feature films, unscripted, children's, commercials and corporates, this document presumes the production has paid into the ScreenSkills HETV Skills Fund, which gives access to specific training and initiatives.

This document has been built making every effort to be considerate in its use of language, it also recognises that we're always learning, and everyone has their own preference for how they are addressed, whether it's regarding pronouns, titles, sexuality, ethnicity or disability.

We acknowledge that some terms and phrases within this document may not align with your personal choices. It is challenging to remain completely updated on evolving terminology, cultural differences and individual preferences. We appreciate your understanding and welcome any suggestions and corrections you may have.

Karl Liegis – Head of Production, 60Forty Films

Areas/Account Codes

The Production Support Initiative focuses on five areas/account codes (in alphabetical order).

1.	Accessibility
2.	Career Development and Training
3.	Counselling, Wellbeing and HR
4.	Diversity, Equity and Inclusion
5.	Sustainability

Within each of these areas there are some suggested foundations for HETV productions at all bands in relation to:

- Policy, Guidelines and Best Practice
- Training
- Initiatives/Allowances

A bibliography of resources and indicative directory of companies who provide support can be found at the end of the document.

This hopefully makes it easier for the document to evolve and be updated, but also actively avoids the document showing any allegiance or bias towards particular companies. It is for productions to take independent decisions on what support and which suppliers are appropriate for them.

A directory for all material mentioned in this document including information and details about companies that provide relevant services can be found at the bottom of this document. Quick links to the relevant items of the Directory are included in each of the section headers.

Policies, Best Practice and Guidelines

Policies form the foundations of a production company and in turn the companies that are set up specifically for their individual productions (SPV). Listed in this document are the policies which might be created specifically for the SPV/production. The policy templates might be provided by the production company. All producers (executives, series producers and line producers) as well as the Head of Production at the production company might be expected to engage with these documents. Any specifics related to the production that are not covered in the production company templates, or require further detail, could be created in a separate document in conjunction with the production company.

However, the reality is that while policies are created for the SPV, very few crew read them in full due to their language, length (the irony of this sentence is not lost, given this document is 80+ pages long!) and because they believe it's no different to what they read 10 years ago. Therefore, one consideration is that as well as creating the legal documentation that is the policy, a production could create a best practice document that distils the policies into brief summaries that can be easily digested by those joining the production (even as a daily) and provide a strong a concise sense of the culture. All members of cast and crew (including dailies) could receive policy documents and ideally a best practice two pager in their contracts as this forms part of the terms of their engagement.

While policies and best practice documentation could be distributed with contracts when onboarding, in areas where new ideas are being trialled, producing guidelines can often be a way to introduce new recommendations for working methods.

How policies, best practice or guidelines documents are delivered to crew is also vital in engagement. If it is just another document on an email about the contract it tends to be missed. If it is presented in a way that is about informing them of the culture you are trying to create in the SPV and about their role in that, it is more enrolling and sets a precedent for positive team cohesion from the outset.

The policies that you will see in the various sections are general and often link to general templates. However, what each production requires should be led by the broadcaster, production company and producing team.

Training

As a sweeping statement, there are only a few roles in the industry where a formal qualification is required. Therefore, when it comes to training, the value of it is that we create a consistent foundation for all those working in the industry.

Broadcasters, streamers and production companies have their own requirements with regards to training that cast and crew must undertake prior to or during employment. By actively encouraging all HETV crew to annually undertake training in areas such as Health, Safety, HR, Diversity, Equity & Inclusion, Leadership, Management, Bullying, Anti-Harassment and Sustainability it creates a foundation of collective accountability and responsibility.

ScreenSkills, in partnership with BBC Studios, ITV Studios and Sky, has already piloted a pan-industry training passport. The ScreenSkills Training Passport will provide a record of standardised and industry-approved training that production staff and freelancers can take from one production to the next. As part of developing the pilot, ScreenSkills also consulted with Pact. The pilot launched in May 2024 and ran for six months.

In addition to this Passport, is there an opportunity to work with the production advisors, unions and Health and Safety specialists to create a cross-plot of all crew and the training they could/should have? Individual productions could also highlight opportunities for further training so individuals can develop a stronger foundation of understanding and contribute more to the HETV industry as a whole.

Should a production require a crew or cast member to complete courses above and beyond those required by a broadcaster through the Passport modules, these should be at the expense of the production and take place during an employee's period of employment.

A recurring challenge with specific training requested by the production is finding suitable times for when crew are able to carry out the training. One suggested solution is to schedule a weekly afternoon slot from the early prep through until four weeks before the shoot, during which several training sessions can take place. This way HODs and supervisors can look ahead and organise when their team will attend.

For crew who join the production closer to the start of Principal Photography, consider paying them a half day (or a full day if combined with other tasks) for them to participate in the training. If the budget does not allow for an additional payment, this half day could be reallocated from their original prep time, provided that they are notified at the time of their engagement and the HODs are also aware.

Training sessions that take place by department have been very beneficial and well received. All the members of the team are on the courses together and it serves as a team building exercise as well. This would be appropriate for training such as HR. A session could also be scheduled for Prep Week -3 (three weeks before shoot starts) as a catch-all for any crew who had not been appointed/engaged when the training took place. It has also been found that running sessions specifically for trainees has created a cohort of junior crew members so they can form a support group, and so they can speak out during HR training sessions (or similar) and support one another should issues come up during the shoot.

By having everyone working to the same standard of training, and then carrying out the additional training in prep it also gives the employee an opportunity to flag any concerns they may have as well as offer up any suggestions on alternative working practices based on their previous employment experience/s.

Initiatives/Allowances

Initiatives are suggested actions productions can take in each of the five areas of the Production Support Initiative. In recent years, the number of initiatives that have been put in place by broadcasters, streamers and production companies has dramatically increased. Many of the initiatives and allowances in this document are influenced by those that have already taken place on productions with notable impact.

The way the suggestions are broken down hopefully serve as a guide in relation to the range of budget implications. It may be that some of the training and initiatives are already in place and provided.

By no means is anything listed intended as a mandate for productions.

Anything suggested should be cross checked and quotes sought before being added to the budget as suppliers' and organisations' rates vary considerably. Production companies should be mindful of their responsibilities to comply with competition law and should take independent decisions on what support is appropriate to each production, and which suppliers and organisations they should use to deliver that support. They should negotiate the rates they will pay those suppliers and organisations independently. They should not discuss or exchange information with other production companies on the amounts they pay or intend to pay suppliers or organisations.

Example Table of Indicative Allowances

The following section illustrates an example of the range of investment a production could budget in each section for a 10 week production with 12 weeks prep and choose to do everything in the green and orange rows. However, to reiterate, this resource and example is a guide to what is out there and is there to help a production “Pick ‘n’ Mix” the level of support that it feels that it is appropriate to put in place.

The rows throughout the document that start with a green cell are included in all the totals below.

The rows throughout the document that start with an orange cell have an allowance based on a 10-week shoot (for ease of calculation).

These will vary due to duration of the production. Some costs in cells will incur additional costs in relation to payroll, NI and Tax.

The rows throughout the document that start with a red cell are not included as they are bespoke services.

In addition, consideration might be made in a budget of an additional amount to cover decarbonisation/insetting/offsetting.

*** AMOUNTS BELOW ARE FOR GUIDANCE ONLY BASED UPON A BROAD RANGE OF RATES THAT ARE EITHER ADVERTISED PUBLICLY OR INFORMED BY PREVIOUS PROJECTS AND ARE QUOTES OBTAINED DURING THE CREATION OF THIS RESOURCE. COMPANIES SHOULD INDEPENDENTLY ASSESS WHAT LEVEL OF SUPPORT IS APPROPRIATE TO THEIR PRODUCTION AND INDEPENDENTLY NEGOTIATE RATES WITH SUPPLIERS*****

Production Support in your Budget

While allowances for the likes of trainees, carbon contributions and HR are already built into many budgets created by line producers, a way of building a budget that is transparent with the investments you intend to make around Production Support is to create a separate account line. The topsheet would show an account line: PRODUCTION SUPPORT and the sub-categories would be displayed as such:

	Account	Account Description
1	6401	HEALTH & SAFETY
2	6402	ACCESSIBILITY
3	6403	CAREER DEVELOPMENT & TRAINING
4	6404	COUNSELING, WELLBEING & HR
5	6405	DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION
6	6406	SUSTAINABILITY
7	6499	Total Fringes
8		Total

As you will see, Health and Safety is included in this section as while long established in the industry it is considered a form of Production Support.

Development

During the development stage, the costs are often at the expense of the production company therefore throughout the early editorial process the development/creative teams could review series outlines and scripts for areas of opportunity to increase diversity and representation, both active and incidental. Depending on the story or subjects, if they are of a sensitive nature you could require Mental Health support for those involved at the development stage.

Once a project is greenlit and receives funding from the broadcaster for further development, the production could set itself up as inclusive and sustainable by engaging an Access Consultant and a Sustainability Consultant to review the creative material and provide valuable input. By being proactive and bringing in expertise at this stage for a relatively nominal cost, numerous possibilities can be created, establishing a strong foundation for the production to build upon. The broadcasters and streamers aim to be more inclusive and sustainable; by engaging at this early stage, you position your production to align with and support the visions and goals of the broadcasters and streamers.

Sustainability Consultant	Sustainability Consultant can in the first instance review the scripts and series outline. From that they produce a report on areas of opportunity in the story and raise any potential concerns. They can also advise on any practical considerations, opportunities or actions the production could take which can then be included in the package that goes to the Broadcaster about the company's approach to sustainability.	£250.00 - £400.00 per script Indicative Range (minimum 6 episodes, maximum 8 Episodes): £1,500.00 - £3,200.00

Soft Prep/Prep/Production

When the production company is in the process of hiring the Series Producer, Director/s and Line Producer the individuals might be made aware in the interview of the company's intentions and ambitions for Production Support. Those interviewing might make a point of encouraging the interviewees to discuss any history of action in these areas as well as their personal aspirations and what they may want to make possible on that specific production.

Once personnel start boarding the production, one way to formally bring together the ideas and intentions of the production company and those being hired to lead the SPV is through a brief Hiring Manifesto/Statement which outlines the production company's and senior personnel's commitments on the project and from the outset asks HOD's and crew to come on that journey.

There is guidance and examples of what this might look like within the Film and TV Charity's Whole Picture Toolkit: <https://wholepicturetoolkit.org.uk/pre-production/agree-a-wellbeing-plan/#production-values>

By having this conversation upfront/in the interviews it can then be reiterated to all agents and crew at the point of engagement and formalised in deal memos and contracts, so everyone is very clear on what is possible and expected.

Ideally, in Soft Prep the production should establish if they are going to want the cast and crew to carry out any training and when that might be. This should then be communicated to all crew during the hiring process.

During Prep is when you would decide which companies/organisations you are going to engage. It may be that the production company has established relationships that can help you.

Accessibility.

Introduction

We have an industry-wide problem with regards to Diversity. By making productions more accessible we not only create the possibility of expanding the workforce, we're also taking a practical approach to diversifying the workforce. As an industry we can and must take action to include the 24% of persons in the UK with disability. We must be more active and that is done by Anticipating, Asking, Assessing, Adjusting and Advocating, as outlined by The TV Access Project (TAP) in the Five As.

In 2021, Jack Thorne's MacTaggart Lecture at the Edinburgh TV festival lambasted the media industry's lack of disability representation on screen and the paucity of employment opportunities behind the camera for people who are DDN (Deaf, Disabled and/or Neurodivergent). From Jack's speech and the campaign by Underlying Health Condition (UHC) came the role of Access Coordinator.

Disability is a spectrum. To paraphrase the UK's Equality Act 2010, someone is disabled if they have one or more physical or mental conditions that are long-lasting and have a substantial adverse effect on day-to-day activities. This covers a wide and diverse range of conditions, impairments, injuries and illnesses, including those which are not immediately apparent such as mental health conditions, chronic conditions, neurodivergence or learning disabilities or difficulties.

It is for each person to decide if they identify as disabled under this definition. Many people have conditions or impairments which are not immediately apparent to an outside observer, but definitely entitle them to identify as disabled. Some have conditions or impairments which, to an outside observer, might meet the criteria and will choose not to identify as disabled. Others may choose not to disclose or share openly that they are disabled. Please note, you may still have legal duties towards all these groups under the Equality Act 2010.

In this document the term 'disabled' has been used, which also includes those who are deaf and/or neurodivergent. We recognise that some people prefer to use the full term 'deaf, disabled and/or neurodivergent', or other terminology – and that terminology changes over time.<sup>1</sup>

Below are details that we hope will support and potentially add to the positive actions already being taken around accessibility. Links have been provided if there is only one site. However, if there are multiple options the links to anything referenced below can be found in the bibliography/links section here.

Career Development And Training.

Introduction

The HETV industry is incredibly difficult to get into if you don't already have an in. However, there are very few positions where any formal qualifications are required. Once you are "in", the chances of career progression into a more senior role is, with the right attitude, highly likely. However, the one thing that has come back time and time again is that, until recent years, there has been very little formal training or guidelines for those new entrants (outside of mentoring), or those who are moving into more senior management positions.

One step to create a basic standard of training in the industry is through the ScreenSkills Skills Passport. While it is at the pilot stage at the time of writing, this could help to create a basic standard of awareness.

Is there a world where Band 3 and 4 Productions have a minimum number of trainees on each show?

Historically in HETV production, if you were good at your job, you got an opportunity to step up, you work extra hard to learn that new role while in the position, you prove yourself in that role and then potentially the opportunity to step up would be presented again. However, it is now recognised that on this path it would be of great benefit for individuals, productions and the culture of the industry for those stepping up to gain skills and training related to management, HR, Health and Safety, budgeting, supporting teams, managing difficult conversations etc.

With this increased training in mind, a consideration for some productions may be that of a Training Manager and/or Coordinator. This would be for a number of reasons: 1) to facilitate and support those in trainee positions 2) to create possibilities for all crew to advance skills through training and 3) to have people in roles dedicated to this as opposed to it being something additional for the production department to manage.

Even if this position was employed on a part-time basis, or maybe even merged with another part-time role (Wellbeing Facilitator, Production Role or HR), it is something that can go a long way to not only creating more possibilities for crew, but also providing a better feedback loop for the training providers from the trainees so the services on offer can grow and adapt to the requirements of physical production. This also allows the potential, as has been demonstrated on productions, to run full work experience programmes where the process is formalised and managed.

Below are details of policies, training and initiatives that aim to support and potentially add to the actions productions are already taking around career development and trainees. There is also a directory at the end of this document of organisations who provide a platform to connect prospective employers and employees here.

Counselling, Wellbeing
And Human Resources (HR).

Introduction

Around 65% of people in the UK experience a mental health problem in their life; that percentage sits at 87% of people in the film and TV industry (2024 Looking Glass Report). Coupled with the Film and TV Charity industry-wide survey that showed 66% of film and TV freelancers have thought about leaving the industry due to concerns about their mental wellbeing, there is clearly something to address. Under Section 2 of the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, there is a duty of care required by employers which includes mental health. Transformation is needed in our industry to protect and maintain our crew, but also to avoid litigation due to negligence. This data and further studies have prompted many workplaces to incorporate wellness into their environment and those that have are reaping the benefits.

The ambition of this section is to help create a mentally healthy production, which by the Film and TV Charity definition is; one where people feel listened to, prioritised, supported and receive the training and tools required to do their job and feel good doing it. Where work demands are reasonable, everyone understands their responsibilities and has a degree of control over the way they work.

With that in mind, HR in the HETV industry cannot be seen through the same lens as traditional HR. On googling “HR Role in Organisation” there are a million definitions, citing everything from: recruitment and selection, developing policies and procedures, managing and overseeing any disputes, disciplinaries, grievances, absences, retirements and redundancies, talent management, compensation, employee benefits, employee relationships, legal responsibilities, compliance, training, development, workplace safety and on and on....

However, looking at that list, all these traditionally have, in the first instance, been the responsibility of the Producer and/or Line Producer to manage and if escalated it would then involve the Head of Production. None of these people are likely (until recently) to have had any formal HR training, certainly not a qualification in it as many individuals working in HR outside of the industry would have. That's not a slight, it's simply a fact. Thankfully there is now a great deal of training around this for both crew and employers, as well as HR companies and employee resources that are tailored specifically for HETV productions.

With regards to well-being outside of HR, there is a plethora of training courses, initiatives and services which exist as charity services (<https://filmtvcharity.org.uk/get-support/mental-health-wellbeing/>) as well as private services that create a foundation for the company.

By undertaking the training and courses below (many of which are included as part of the HETV Fund Levy) we can redefine what wellbeing and HR means to the industry, productions and individuals. We could start to see HR as a support tool to enhance employees' experience as well as making sure organisations adhere to their legal responsibilities.

Below are details of policies, training and initiatives to support and potentially add to the actions productions are already taking around counselling, wellbeing and HR. There is also a list of resources and a directory of organisations who provide services at the end of this document here.

	Workplace Bullying and Harassment Incidents Reporting. Software/ App or Service.	Software/App or service to empower everyone working in HETV to monitor, prevent bullying and harassment and to provide the SPV the opportunity to monitor and react to workplace bullying and harassment.	£100.00 - £150.00 per weeks for 100-200 crew  Based on 8 weeks prep, 10 weeks shoot, 2 weeks wrap:  Indicative Range: £2,000.00 - £3,000.00  *Cost will vary depending on length of Production and specific Production requirements outside of basic monitoring.
	HR Coaching	One-to-one session for appointed HR person on shoot (Line Producer, PM, etc.).	Indicative Range: £750.00 - £1,500.00
	HR Consultant	Recommended minimum allowance of 4 hours per week to deal with HR cases. The objective would, in the first instance, be to manage cases internally. However, external HR provides support for complex cases.  It may also be that broadcasters and production companies are able to provide HR support to the SPV, this would mean no allowance would be required.	N/A	£700.00 - £1,200.00 per day (8 Hours). Diversity, Equity
And Inclusion (DEI).

Introduction

The practice of being inclusive is only going to increase the workforce and add value to the industry. It can longer come in our intentions, it has to come in our actions. It is evidenced that inclusive teams are over 35% more productive and diverse teams make better decisions 87% of the time (Cloverpop White Paper). Why would we as an industry not want that? Maybe we do, we just don't have confidence to do it or live in unconscious bias. Whatever way we want to do this requires commitment, planning, patience and financial resources.

As a discipline, DEI is any policy, training or initiative designed to make people of various backgrounds feel welcome and ensure they have support to perform to the fullest of their abilities in the workplace. This kind of environment is created by following all three aspects of DEI.

Diversity is the presence of differences within a given setting. In the workplace, that can mean differences in race, ethnicity, sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, physical ability, age, socioeconomic class and whether a person has children.

Equity is the process of ensuring that practices and programmes are impartial, fair and provide equal possible outcomes for every individual.

Inclusion is the practice of ensuring that people feel a sense of belonging in the workplace. This means that every employee feels comfortable and supported by the production company when it comes to being their authentic selves.

Combining these three elements, DEI is an ethos that recognises the value of diverse voices and emphasises inclusivity and employee wellbeing as central facets of success. To bring those values to life, productions must implement initiatives that actively make them more diverse, equitable and inclusive.

This starts with advertising the role and recruiting from the widest possible talent pool. The overall aim is to ensure our company and productions are crewed with appropriately qualified people at every level, and that our hiring process doesn't exclude people from some parts of society.

*** Good intentions alone won't affect change. Meaningful transformation requires positive action *****

Below are details of policies, training and initiatives to support and potentially add to the actions productions are already taking around DEI. There is also a directory of organisations who provide a platform to connect prospective employers and employees at the end of this document here.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION - POLICIES, GUIDELINES AND BEST PRACTICE
POLICY/ GUIDELINES/ BEST PRACTICE	DETAILS
Inclusive Hiring Guidelines	Created by the company to circulate Producer, Line Producer, Director, HODs and supervisors to support them in their recruitment processes.
Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Policy for SPV	To circulate to all cast and crew.  This policy applies to all conduct in the workplace and also to conduct outside of the workplace that is related to the employees' work (e.g. at meetings, social events and social interactions with colleagues) or which may impact on the SPV's reputation (e.g. the expression of views on social media, contrary to the commitments expressed in this policy, that could be linked to SPV).
Acknowledge Religious Holidays (Guidelines)	While the likes of Christmas and Easter are acknowledged as bank holidays, guidelines should be in place to allow the opportunity for those cast or crew who practice other faiths to approach production about having cover on those days, or in the instance of Ramadan having a best practice approach to late breaks and eating on set.
Anti-Discrimination Policy for SPV	All employees are legally protected from discrimination by the Equality Act 2010. Protection extends to individuals associated with someone who has a protected characteristic, such as a family member or friend. Additionally, you are protected if you have complained about discrimination or supported someone else's claim.  If the company wishes to create a specific Anti-Discrimination Policy, it would aim to ensure that all employees are treated fairly and equitably, regardless of their race, ethnicity, gender, age, sexual orientation, religion, disability, or other characteristics that might otherwise result in discrimination. The purpose of this policy is to prevent discrimination and harassment in the workplace and to create a safe and inclusive environment for all employees. Additionally, it promotes a more positive and productive work environment, reduces the risk of legal liability, and helps to attract and retain a diverse and talented workforce.
Job Share Guidelines	Incorporate job sharing into the company culture and as an engagement option offered to the crew. Job sharing involves two (or more) employees splitting the responsibilities of one full-time role. Pay, benefits and leave entitlement for job sharing are allocated on a pro rata or proportional basis, divided approximately by hours worked, relative to a full-time salary.
Creating an Inclusive Production for Parents or Carers (Guidelines)	Guidelines, suggestions and ideas on how to make the full life-span of a Production fully inclusive for parents and/or carers. This is an area where there is a huge amount of support for transformation, however, unless at a studio, the desire for change has not been fully realised. The proposal would be that at the start of the production you look at what actions you could take, big or small, to create a more inclusive production for parents and carers. Active encouragement of suggestions from the parents or carers on actions and methods of support could lead to groundbreaking pilot schemes.

Trans Inclusive Policy for SVP (or integrated into other policies)	While this forms part of the Anti-Discrimination and Anti-Bullying Policy of the company, a specific policy or set of guidelines could be created, or specific areas from the policy extracted and displayed as part of the production's Best Practice Documentation.
Working From Home/Flexible Working Guidelines	Including Working from Home/Flexible Working as part of the company guidelines and type of engagement offered.

Sustainability.

Introduction

Sustainability is referred to readily when talking about the previous four sections, and rightly so as sustainability entails all the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs),* diversity, equal pay, biodiversity and mental health. However, when talked about in this section, Sustainability refers to environmental sustainability and the broadcasters' commitment to achieving Net Zero. This section is not about being righteous, or about revisiting past actions, it focuses on taking responsible actions to reduce our negative impact. Adopting a sustainable approach can create savings if integrated from an early stage, with energy and waste being key components.

Sustainability is a joint effort on all levels and especially in an industry like HETV production where participants affect each other; from studio through to vendor to crew and cast. Therefore, suitable action and communication is required on all levels. If sustainability is not taken seriously at the top, it won't be effective. A key decision maker as an ally is key in this process to debunk the greenwashing myth.

To achieve sustainability goals, the overall budget should be considered with a sustainable mindset, not just individual elements such as fuel, locations, travel, waste management, procurement, equipment rental and package deals. Allocating a budget for sustainability personnel and a departmental allowance is best practice to support other departments to achieve the production's overall sustainability goals. The scale of the personnel involvement and the corresponding budget will vary based on the budget band, but incorporating sustainability into your planning process is crucial to meet the sustainability goals you set.

Having a general educational forum for HODs and crew on sustainability would be very beneficial. Although they'd like to choose the more sustainable option, many get information late, get overwhelmed (and are also overstretched) and this leads to last minute decisions which in turn generally creates more carbon and waste. This is where editorial training, basic training and department specific training becomes vital.

One thing this document and the budget does not cover, but is a huge part of the transformation, is the suppliers and technology. From carbon budgets, EV charging stations, to EV premiums/hybrid vehicles, HVO (Hydrotreated Vegetable Oil), hybrid generators and batteries. The suppliers are taking action and you may consider taking the sustainability credentials of suppliers into account when taking procurement decisions. BAFTA albert currently hosts the most comprehensive directory for sustainable suppliers. (At the time of writing, that directory was being updated).

In January 2024, the industry decided to remove mandatory carbon offsetting in BAFTA albert. Offsetting wasn't driving the decarbonisation that the industry needed to hit their Net Zero targets. Broadcasters do differ in their approach to this change, but it is generally accepted that the line in the budget for offsetting remains, with this now being re-allocated to decarbonisation. Supporting initiatives as above. See Carbon Neutralisation/Decarbonisation, page 57 for more detail.

Aside from all of the above, we should also be looking at sustainability in our storytelling, third party audits (so we can track development), and financial tax incentives around sustainability.

Supplier Sustainability Memo for SPV	Green Memo for suppliers, to be issued with the supplier’s contract.
Sustainability Account code Guidelines	One of the greatest assets we have to help transform our production's impact is data. As it stands we’re not tracking the areas of our budget that have the greatest impact. These are: energy, fuel, materials, waste and travel. A universal entry and coding/grouping system will allow us to produce data that will allow us to better understand and better react to climate change. It will also be able to demonstrate savings the green solutions are creating. I.e. Ask suppliers to split out the fuel from the hire, giving HVO/Bio Diesels their own code. This will help identify carbon savings throughout the production.

This would always be the crew member's choice and offer either a partial supplement or complete replacement on the usual gift, for one that has a positive carbon impact. People who still want the physical gift shouldn't lose out, so this should 100% be a choice, but more and more people are climate conscious and want to help where they can.
Eco Crew Competition	Weekly/monthly competition to encourage data tracking and celebrate successes of each department. Winners awarded digital certificates, included in green newsletters or gifted a sustainable prize.
Sustainability Council Guideline	One member of each department to create a group aimed at discussing sustainability resources, ways to reduce waste (energy, food, money, etc.) and to form more cohesive approach to sustainability on the production.
Production Green Memo	Green Memo for cast and crew to be issued upon onboarding. Can be followed up with green newsletters from your Sustainability Consultant, and/or a final Green Memo to celebrate successes at the end of production. This should have the signature of Head of Production, Producer and Line Producer on it. And ideally the Director and lead cast members.

Environmental Accounting/ Tracking Audit	Accounts team to audit environmental accounting and tracking sustainability-related spends.
Studio/Stages Offices Sustainability Policy	E.g. Reviewed, discussed, revised, distributed.
Storage/Disposal Guidelines	The Government's guide for businesses' duties of care to correctly store and dispose of waste and production materials.
Catering Guidelines/ Agreement	In advance of hiring the caterers, create a list of considerations, ambitions and requirements that you as a company have for the caterers to answer to during the hiring process. Things like disposable/reusable cutlery and lunch boxes, no red meat/beef, a veg day each week, leftover food plan, food scraps plan, HVO fuel, no gas, locally sourced produce, etc.  Productions are encouraged to make low carbon choices around the ingredients they use within their catering. Using seasonal/local produce is best. Avoiding or reducing red meat is something production/catering may want to consider.
Encourage Broadcaster to Provide Sustainability Goals	The process of productions becoming more sustainable would ultimately be expedited and would increase the broadcasters and streamers' abilities to meet their Net Zero targets by providing sustainability goals to all their productions as part of the green light process. Productions are encouraged to ask broadcasters when preparing budgets what requirements the broadcasters have so they can be planned for, implemented and adhered to from the outset.  By agreeing early on, that builds the foundation of reporting that would ideally lead to higher engagement in external communication for the broadcaster to help encourage the culture shift. Productions' sustainability reports and finds could also be shared to help inform others of positive actions and findings.
Negotiate Talent Contracts with Sustainability in Mind	Empower Equity members throughout the UK to sign up for and fight for green and accessible workspaces using the Equity Green New Deal.

Carbon Neutralisation/Decarbonisation	To date this has been achieved by a production off-setting their emissions based on the total amount as shown in carbon calculators. Some broadcasters/streamers pay for this, others require it to be included in production budgets. While off-setting has been adopted, there is rightly a new focus from the likes of albert towards decarbonisation and this could also involve insetting.	Data shows that if calculated correctly, an average Band 3 Production footprint ranges between 2000-4000t CO2e (depending on the accuracy of carbon accounting and the implemented initiative). Whatever figure you are basing it on, this contribution, if we were to build a HETV Insetting Fund, like the HETV Fund, could create so many possibilities for the industry and other industries. It is no longer a mandatory requirement to offset your carbon emissions in order to achieve albert Certification. However, in order for broadcasters/streamers to reach their Net Zero targets, productions should continue to budget for carbon offsetting costs and liaise with the broadcaster/streamer on completion of the project as parts of production budgets that go towards insetting could create a real collective shift of the dial within the UK industry.

Directory: Production Support & Initiatives

This directory is by no means complete or comprehensive. It is a start. The ambition is that this is the first section to expand and we can create something that breaks down into national and then regional. While best efforts have been made to include and accurately reflect the companies and services there are, it may be that there are inaccuracies which will hopefully be highlighted in a way that reinforces the collaborative nature the document is intended to exist in.

ScreenSkills: Training Programmes/Courses

Productions can claim back up to 60% of their fund contribution. Flexibility can be offered should a Production wish to take more funds from one programme over another. Any unspent funds are invested in wider crew development including grade shortages to deliver further workforce growth.

The remaining 40% is invested back into delivering wider workforce development and opportunities cross the UK including:

- Facilitating job shares
- Freelance training bursaries
- Driving lesson and access bursaries
- Socio economic outreach programmes
- DEI focused activities including access coordinator programme, Deaf and disability awareness training.
- Virtual Production taster sessions for all grades
- Sector specific e-learning.
- A.I training for future workforce development
- Freelance CV, mentoring and career development sessions etc.

For current and most up to date details of all available as part of Productions 60% programmes please see here: ScreenSkills HETV support.
